

Benefit Year End

It's not a glitch, so do not open a new claim.
Here's how it works:

STEP
1

➤ Claim Gets Reviewed

Your unemployment claim remains valid for one year from the date it is filed, unless you exhaust benefits sooner. Federal law requires a review for new wages after one year.

STEP
2

OR

➤ Sufficient Wages Earned

You earned at least $220/week for 20 or more weeks, or $11,000 total, during the base year, which is the first four of the prior five quarters before you filed your claim. A new claim will be filed on your behalf.

➤ Insufficient Wages Earned

You did not work during the base year, or your earnings did not meet the threshold. You will continue collecting benefits on your existing claim, so long as extended benefits remain available.

STEP
3

➤ Benefits Continue

Continue to certify for weekly benefits according to the schedule at MyUnemployment.nj.gov.

* Please be aware some claims will require manual review before processing.
